Sketch of the Early History of Cambridge.

"Newetowne," the name given to the little village which later became known as "Cambridge," was settled in 1631. Two of the first settlers were Thomas Dudley, afterwards four times elected Governor, and Simon Bradstreet.

An old writer says that "most of the inhabitants are very rich, and have great store of cattle."

The first college buildings were erected in 1637, the state legislature granting the then large sum of £400 to found a school.

At this time the name of the town was changed to Cambridge, in recognition of the fact that many of the colonists had graduated from the English University of that name.

Near what is now Arlington Street, called then "Gallows Lot," two negro slaves "Mark" and "Phyllis" were executed in 1775 for the murder of their master; the latter, an aged woman, being burned at the stake.

Brattle Street was called "Tory Row," on which was situated the homes of many old aristocratic families, and is the street upon which is located "Elmwood." Lowell's residence, and Longfellow's, which was occupied by Washington during the winter of 1775-6.

The battle of Lexington occurred on April 21st of the next year. One night many of the inhabitants of Cambridge took refuge near Fresh Pond. Seventy or eighty women and their children were sent the following day to Andover, whither the college treasures had also been taken.

From Dr. Holmes' residence, near where the present Law School now stands, was issued, it is said, the order for the fortifying of Bunker Hill.

Under the well-known elm, at the junction of Mason and Garden Streets, Washington with drawn sword took command of the American Army, July 3, 1775. The first "Union" flag was raised at this place. The buildings of Harvard College were used for barracks.

The first printing press set up in the colonies was sent by the Rev. Jesse Glover, from Surrey, England. He died on the voyage out, and Stephen Daye, his assistant, became the first printer in this part of America. The first work printed within the present limits of the United States was "The Freeman's Oath, printed by S. Daye, 1639."

The First Parish Church, a wooden structure just out of the Square, was built about 1833 by the College authorities. It was first located, in 1633, at the present corner of Mt. Auburn and Dunster Streets. Until 1872, the College Commencement exercises were held in this church.

Among the names of prominent families of the early colonial days are the following: Allen, Brown, Chamberlain, Chaplin, Cook, Coolidge, Dana, Fiske, Foxcroft, Fuller, Glover, Gore, Green, Greenwood, Hancock, Harris, Hildreth, Hills, Hovey, Hubbard, Hyde, James, Kidder, Lamson, Munroe, Manning, Marrett, Mason, Morrill, Pickering, Parker, Russell, Whittemore, and others. Many of these names are perpetuated in designating streets.

PLACES OF INTEREST.

Cambridge abounds in places of historic and general interest, and a complete description of them would fill a large volume. It is the aim of this publication to point out, in concise form, the principal and most interesting ones, with some distinguishing incidents connected therewith.

Harvard University.

This is the natural objective point for many visitors, and it is a sort of center from which one may plan trips to various other places.

It is to be reached from Boston by all cars marked "Harvard Square." The Harvard Bridge route is the most popular, giving what may be termed a bird's-eye view of a part of the city, and of the Charles River. Passing through Central Square, the City Hall comes in view on the right, the gift of Frederick H. Rindge. Just before reaching Harvard Square, and close to the college buildings, stands the old Wadsworth House, built in 1726. This was the home of the college presidents until 1849. Washington also lived here for a short time. Walking on, keeping to the right, one passes a large dormitory, Matthews Hall, and further on, across the street is seen the First Parish Church, built in 1833. (See Historical Sketch, p. 3.) Beside the church is the Old Towne Burying Ground, in which are buried seven of Harvard's presidents. Beyond is the historic Christ Church, opened in 1761, with its chime of thirteen bells. General and Mrs. Washington attended service in Christ Church on the last Sunday of 1775. Opposite is the Cambridge Common with the Soldier's monument, and the Bridge statue. The main entrance to the College grounds is a short distance to the east, commonly called "The Gate." It stands between the oldest of Harvard buildings—Massachusetts Hall on the right. and Harvard Hall on the left, the former built in 1720 for a dormitory, and the latter in 1765. Harvard Hall contained the library and lecture rooms of the early days. Passing into the quadrangle or yard the visitor sees about him dormitories where have roomed Charles Sumner, Wendell Phillips, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Edward Everett, Edward Everett Hale, Caleb Cushing, Oliver Wendell Holmes and many other distinguished men.

Class Day Tree, easily recognized by odds and ends of strings showing where the bands of roses have been fastened, is found by retracing our steps through the gate, and turning to the right. Seats are here built, tier upon tier, upon which the ladies sit, the graduates and students occupying the grass, and the graduating class being grouped about the tree. Just beyond the Tree is Holden Chapel, built in 1744. Passing by the Chapel and along Cambridge Street, Holworthy Hall is seen on the right, and on the left the statue of John Harvard, and Memorial Hall, with its tower 200 feet high in the centre, Sanders Theatre on the east and Dining Hall on the west, erected in 1874–76 by the graduates of the University, and named in honor of Charles Sanders, who gave over $60.000 toward the building. The statue of John Harvard is an ideal one, there being no likeness of him in existence.

The Peabody Museum of Archæology and Ethnology, the gift of George Peabody, is reached by turning to the left on Quincy Street, and then taking Divinity Avenue. The museum is open on week days from 9 to 5. On the same avenue is the University Museum, largely the result of Louis Agassiz's work, containing an extremely valuable zoölogical collection. Dom Pedro II, of Brazil was an ardent friend of this museum. Shady Hill, the home of Charles Eliot Norton, the friend of Ruskin, Emerson and Carlyle, is just beyond, on rising ground. (See cut, p. 13). If time is too short to visit the museum, the steps may be retraced from Memorial Hall, and the college grounds crossed at the junction of Cambridge Street and Broadway, and the Fogg Art Museum visited at the entrance, and farther on, Appleton Chapel and Gore Hall, containing the Library. Gore Hall is patterned after King's College Chapel, Cambridge, England. Over the entrance is a gilt cross brought from Louisburg in 1745 by Massachusetts soldiers. Then comes Boylston Hall, used for chemical and other lectures.

The President's House,

Fronting on Quincy Street, is conveniently reached by the walk starting from near the door of Gore Hall (library). Charles William Eliot, the present occupant, took the President's chair in 1869. On class-day morning the seniors, escorted by a band, march two by two up this path to breakfast with the President. Immediately opposite his residence stands the Colonial Club House, formerly the residence of the late Henry James, father of the novelist. On Quincy Square, and south of the President's house, is the Dana House, built in 1823 by Chief Justice R. H. Dana.

If one wishes to visit the Law School (Austin Hall), the Jefferson Physical Laboratory, etc., the course should be changed on leaving the Class Tree, and the street to the left (Holmes Place) taken. In this vicinity are also the Hemenway Gymnasium, Lawrence Scientific School, and the Carey Athletic Building, built for winter practice of the crew, their boat being stationary in a circular tank, while the water moves. Near by are Holmes Field and Jarvis Field, for sports.

Radcliffe College,

For women, is reached by passing the Burying Ground and Christ Church along Garden Street, on the left. A few steps more and we stand where Washington once stood on taking command of the army under the elm in the middle of the street. (See cut, p. 9). The inscription was written by Longfellow. In this tree a lookout was built, and from here Washington watched the British ships in the harbor and the fortifications in Boston. At the left is the Shepard Memorial Church, founded in 1636. The present building was erected in 1871. The Rev. Alexander McKenzie is the present pastor.

The Botanic Garden, having over 5000 species of flowering plants, is beyond, on the corner of Garden and Linnæan Streets. The collection of cacti and orchids is very fine.

The Astronomical Observatory is diagonally opposite, the grounds of which are open to visitors. This is one of the two important stations in the world for the announcement of astronomical discoveries.

NOTE. — For more extended description of the University, see "Souvenir Guide-Book of Harvard," published by J. F. Olsson & Co., Harvard Square.

WASHINGTON ELM.

The Episcopal Theological School,

Founded in 1867, and St. John's Memorial Chapel, built in 1869, at junction of Mason and Brattle Streets, a short distance from Shepard Memorial Church. The Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, Dean of the School, occupies the large square building west of the main dormitory. Following these buildings is

Longfellow's, (Craigie House),

Well set back from the street, with a white-lilac hedge in front. Built in 1759 by Col. John Vassall, a Tory. Purchased in 1791 by Andrew Craigie, with whose widow Longfellow came to board in 1837, afterward becoming the owner. In the southeast room "Voices of the Night" and "Hyperion" were written. "Longfellow Park," laid out in memory of the poet, opposite the house, reaches nearly to the "Charles."

Lowell's, (Elmwood),

Is situated farther on, sheltered by many noble trees, on Elmwood Avenue. It was built in 1760 and occupied ten years later by Thomas Oliver, last Lieutenant-Governor under the crown. In 1818 it was bought by the father of the poet.

Mount Auburn Cemetery.

Farther along Brattle Street near Mt. Auburn Station on the Fitchburg R. R. and reached by Mt. Auburn electrics from Harvard Square, is the cemetery which holds the remains of many illustrious men and women. Consecrated in 1831. It has over thirty miles of avenues and paths.

CRAIGIE HOUSE (LONGFELLOW'S).

Cambridge Cemetery

Is just across Coolidge Avenue, near Mt. Auburn. Near the gate is the Soldiers' Urn, placed there by the Women's Relief Corps in honor of the unknown dead.

Fresh Pond. (Cambridge Water Supply).

Or, after leaving the spring, take the way on the left, by the small pond into Concord Avenue, then turning to the left. Here one can have, either a charming drive to Belmont, or taking Huron Ave. a little way on to the left, follow it to Grove St., then left on Belmont St., to Mt. Auburn.

THE BACK BAY FENS.

This park, just across the Harvard Bridge, is the happy outcome of the desire to remedy what once constituted a serious menace to nearby residents. Stony Brook is subject to sudden overflow, and the sewerage from it was a serious nuisance. Two large basins were provided, and the flats were filled in. What was formerly an ugly spot has now become one of the most beautiful of landscapes; and it has all the characteristics of nature, giving one the impression that natural beauties have been enhanced by man's art. Its aspect is typical of a New England salt marsh, a creek meandering amidst fens with bosky banks. When the brook rises, the marshes are overflowed and the basins have then the appearance of miniature lakes, until the tide falls in the harbor, allowing the water to regain its normal level.

The bridges, walks, drives, and saddle paths are admirably planned and add materially to the picturesque interest of the scenery. Canoeing will soon be permitted in the Fens, as ample facilities are forthcoming from the Park Boat Service. Waterfowl are a pleasing feature. Trees, shrubbery, herbaceous perennials and blooming plants of various description suggest that the place had originally been composed of gardens, whose varied growths had run wild, and had become established here.

How Fast Am I Going?

Teeth on Sprockets.	Gear.	Teeth.	Gear.
8, small, 16, large	56	8, small, 19, large	66
8 " 17 "	59½	7 " 17, "	68
8 " 18 "	63	7 " 18, "	72
7 " 16 "	64	7 " 19, "	77

Find out by above table what your gear is, and divide by 6. This will give rate of miles per hour with one revolution of the pedals per second. For example: gear 68, divided by 6 gives 11 and a fraction miles per hour (when pedalling one revolution per second.)

What Can It Mean?

All those people flocking to Ward's Market? Not the first time for many of them. It means: (1) that their statements about quality of their provisions have been found true in all cases; (2) that their business methods are appreciated; (3) that most Cambridge people have discovered where they can spend money to best advantage COME! BICYCLING INFORMATION.

No. 2. Central Sq., Magazine St.; left, Brookline Bridge, cross Commonwealth Ave.; left, right, cross Beacon St.; right, Chapel Sta.; left, Jamaica Way; right (taking left-hand road) to Jamaica Pond; just before reaching Pond take Perkins St., keeping to right for a fine coast past old Pumping Sta. There is fine spring water in the Glen at the Pumping Sta.

No. 3. Take Route 2, past Jamaica Pond and Arnold Arboretum, cross railroad at Forest Hill Sta. (dangerous, don't coast); Morton St., left to Franklin Park. See Guide to Franklin Park, page 76.

NOTE. — No brake is so safe for coasting as the heels pressed against the front wheel with the toes on coasting brackets. Do not bear too hard on brackets, as owing to shape of forks they are liable to slip.

If you must stop instantly, don't apply the brake and go over the handle bars. Simply slide back off the saddle and grasp it firmly, as you brace your feet. Practice this. It may save your life some time.

It is safer to pass in front of a person on the street, if there is any doubt of his having heard your bell, because, nearly always, people step back when startled.

BICYCLE ROUTE

THROUGH BROOKLINE, NEWTON, AUBURNDALE, LEXINGTON, ARLINGTON, BELMONT and WAVERLY

Magazine St., Putnam Ave., Brookline Bridge, to Commonwealth Ave. its entire length to Chestnut Hill Reservoir, where those interested in machinery may inspect the pumping station of the Boston water works. Now continue to western boundary of the Reservoir and connect with the new Newton Boulevard, where a short climb brings us to Waban Hill, where the Newton Reservoir is situated, and we have a magnificent view of Boston Harbor and even as far west as Mount Wachusett.

Now continue on this finest boulevard in the State to its terminus at Auburndale, where we cross bridge (over B. & A. R. R., near depot) and take first street to right, Lexington St., following it to Moody St., and continue to Waltham, connecting with the main road to Lexington, a fine, hard road-bed and very level the entire distance. There are many points of interest which here meet the wheelmen on every hand.

Returning through Arlington, take Massachusetts Ave. to Pleasant St. Turning to the right we spin along the shore of Spy Pond and continue to Belmont Springs for a cool draught of clear spring water.

Now, refreshed, we go through the little town of Waverly and take Lexington St., which brings us to the Main St. in Watertown; turn to left here and take Arsenal St. to the U. S. Arsenal or enter directly on Mount Auburn St., following it thence through Cambridge to our starting point. (For further routes see page 57).

Drives About Cambridge and Vicinity.

To Brookline and Brighton.

From Harvard Square, via Massachusetts Avenue, Putnam Avenue, Brookline Street, over Brookline Street Bridge. From Central Square, Magazine Street to Putnam Avenue, thence same route over the bridge. Pass through Brookline by way of Commonwealth Avenue to Chestnut Hill Reservoir, then taking road to Brighton, as far as the Faneuil House (a large hotel in the center of the town) then — if one wishes to prolong the drive — passing down Western Avenue, turning to the left to pass over the Watertown Bridge and then turning to the right to go to Fresh Pond. (See Fresh Pond drive.)

To Watertown.

From Central Square via River Street to Brighton, passing by the Faneuil House and Oak Square. Returning from Watertown, take Center, Main, and Mount Auburn Streets. On the way Mount Auburn is passed, and continuing along Brattle Street, the houses of the poets, Longfellow and Lowell.

To Newton, Auburndale, etc. (Ten Miles.)

To Fresh Pond.

Leaving Harvard Square, proceed along Brattle St., by Longfellow's and Lowell's, to Mount Auburn. Cross the bridge, turn sharply to the right then along Holworthy Street to the arched entrance, and when reaching the pond, turn to the left. (The complete circuit of the pond measures 2½ miles). Lily Pond is on the left, and a spring of excellent water is just beyond. After skirting the railroad track, the visitor approaches Kingsley Park, a wooded knoll with natural attractions.

To Medford and Tufts College.

Follow Massachusetts Ave. into Arlington. Then Turn right past Cooper's Tavern through High St.; fine view of Mystic Lake on left. Turn left into Grove St., through lovely scenery. Turn first right into Purchase St., following the latter to High St., then left, following High St., to Medford Sq. Turn right to Medford St., passing over Craddock's Bridge; turn right into South St., bear to the left into College Ave., to College (Tufts) Hill, then straight on over the hill to Broadway, turn left and stop at the beautiful Powder House Park, visiting the Old Powder House. Continue on along Broadway over Winter Hill, to Inman Sq., Cambridge, and thence home.

To Middlesex Fells.

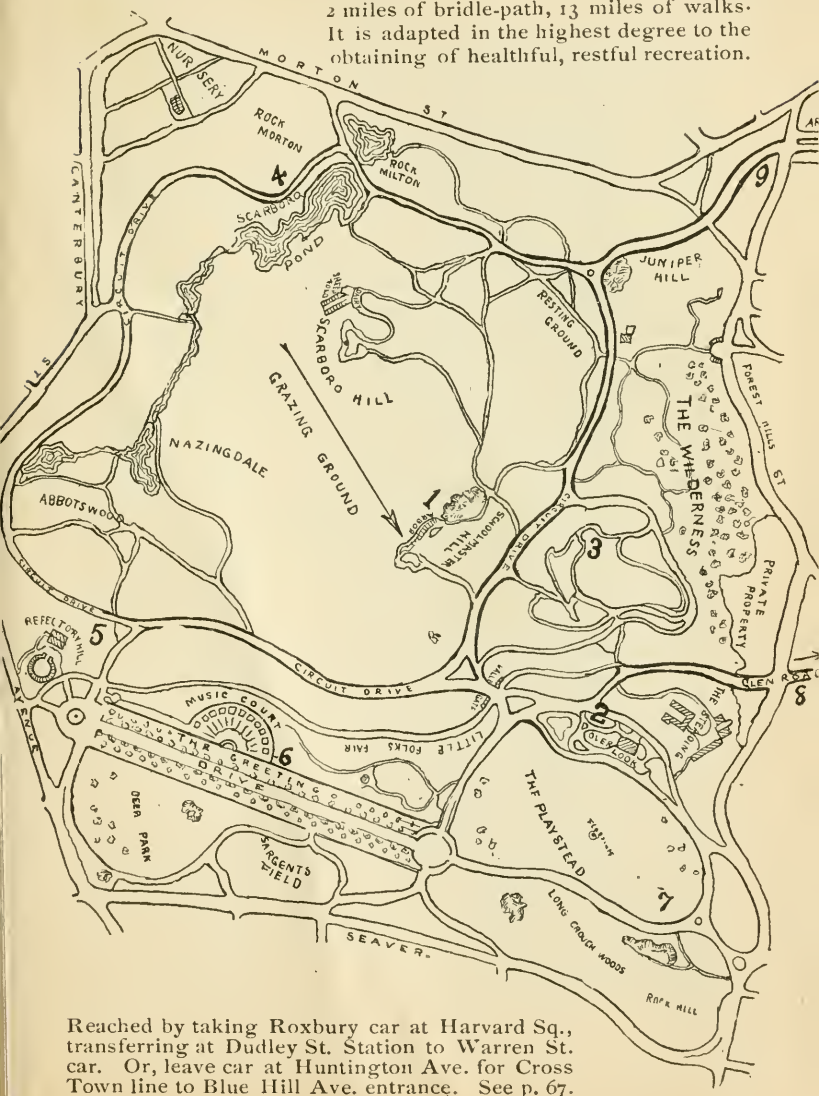
After reaching Medford Sq. (in route above), turn left into Forest St. which will take us to the Fells, and Spot Pond. This section is now a part of the Metropolitan Park System.

Explanation of Diagram.

The popular entrance is on Blue Hill Ave. Those who come by street cars can here obtain admirable carriage service for 25 cents, with checks for stop-overs. Those bringing lunch can stop, for instance, so as to go to Schoolmaster Hill. Here is a long terrace covered with vines on trellises and with compartments for small family parties. Near by is a house with parcel rooms, and hot water is supplied free of charge. See diagram, fig. 1. The Over-look, fig. 2, has an elevated platform for the use of spectators when games are in progress on the Playstead. It has a shelter, and simple refreshments may be had here. Also facilities for bathing and the toilet. 3. Reached by a winding route, this look-out commands the best view to be had of the Blue Hills. 4. This vicinity, containing romantic and picturesque scenery, is best reached by the circuit drive from 3. Scarboro Pond has fine opportunities for boating in summer and for skating in winter. Rock Milton, at the western boundary of the pond, rises almost perpendicularly to the height of 63 feet. Summer house on summit. The first road to the right from this point, going north, takes one to Scarboro Hill, where a fine view is had, and seats are abundant. 5. Here is the great restaurant, designed by Hartwell and Richardson, and built of light-colored brick and terra cotta. When completed it will have roof gardens and pavilions, and also a carriage court and horse sheds. 6. The Greeting, and Music Court, are not yet completed. The former is to be a promenade, half a mile in length, composed of drives, rides and walks, and a special bicycle path. Music Court will be a sylvan amphitheatre for concerts. The Little Folks' Fair will be a place for children's entertainment, with provisions for their perfect safety. Sargent's Field is for tennis courts, etc. Long Crouch Woods, adjoining the Playstead, is reserved for a zoölogical garden. The Steading is a rocky knoll, containing the Park offices. 7. The Playstead, is a splendid playground of thirty acres extent, nearly level, with trees here and there. 8. Glen Road entrance is very steep, but is the shortest route to the Park from Jamaica Pond. 9. Entrance from the Arborway, via Arnold Arboretum and Jamaicaway. There are ten entrances for both carriages and pedestrians. The various roads and ways are laid out in such a manner that the natural beauties are preserved and enhanced.

FRANKLIN PARK.

Named in 1885, after Benjamin Franklin. This great rural park of Boston has an area of 520 acres. There are 6 miles of drives, 2 miles of bridle-path, 13 miles of walks. It is adapted in the highest degree to the obtaining of healthful, restful recreation.



Reached by taking Roxbury car at Harvard Sq., transferring at Dudley St. Station to Warren St. car. Or, leave car at Huntington Ave. for Cross Town line to Blue Hill Ave. entrance. See p. 67.

FRANKLIN PARK.

The ideal scenery of this noble playground has been treated with great respect by the landscape gardener. Its original aspect has in no case been changed except to give, as Mr. Frederick Law Olmstead says "A fuller development, aggrandizement, and emphasis to what are regarded as the more interesting and effective existing elements of the scenery."

One of the two broad outlooks has been mentioned (p. 76) and the other is the view from the Refectory terrace, where one can see to the westward the treetops of Forest Hills Cemetery, and also those of the Arnold Arboretum. Mr. Olmstead points out how a view of moderate expanse can be had between simple bodies of forest trees, the foliage masses higher than the central lines. "From wherever these larger prospects open the middle distances will be quiet, slightly hollowed surfaces of turf or buskets, bracken, sweetfern, or mosses, the backgrounds formed by woodsides of a soft, even, subdued tone, with long, graceful, undulating sky lines, which, according to the point of view of the observer on the park, will be from one to five miles away."

FRANKLIN FIELD.

This is in the neighborhood of Franklin Park, although not adjoining. It lies a little to the south.

It is intended for base ball and other games, for a military training field, and for public open-air meetings. It contains seventy acres. The meadow, flooded in winter, forms a popular skating ground.
